COMMUNICATED. YOUTH-BY LARRY LEE.

My friend, thou comest to the prime of man, And the rich glow of youth is cast aside, Whose years to thee fled like the running sand Whose glowing days past like the ebbing tide;

And as thou lookest on that cheerful scene, And mem'ry clings to some undying spot, As thou dost muse upon some youthful dream, With moisten'd eye thou grievest fortune's lot. Yet who would brook that emblem of distress,

Thou lookest onward with a bounding heartsimeres, Cloths and Vestings; Travelling Shawls And thoughts unsullied as a cloudless sky. For thou, as erst, life's weary cares doth scorn, As day beams doth the night, at rosy morn.

Now, if I am in a quarrelsome humor, and break out, my wife remains cool and collected, and does not say a word. If my wife is pecvish, and displays more temper than is becoming to one of her beautiful sex, I, her husband, remain as unmoved as the Monument, or else obeat myself into the belief that I am listening for the moment to one of Grisi's heavenly songs. Thus, whilst one party is volcanically fuming, the other is as calm as a cold potato. In all our quarrels there is, in this way, always a controlling power. Seriously, we never quarrel, beus never to quarrel together. We only quarrel one at a time; and it is aetonishing, il you leave a quarrel alone, how very soon it dies out!
